

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A laser-positioning device for drilling machine comprises a carrier base having two accommodating slots and mounted to the outer case of the drilling machine, and a pair of laser sources respectively mounted in the accommodating slots of the carrier base to respectively generate a light beam, the light beams from the laser sources intersecting at an intersection point on the piece to be machined indicating the landing point of the drill tool.